SJTC prepares for return to Imperial Theatre

The Saint John Theatre Company prepares for its first Main Stage production in over a year with the heart-warming, habit-forming musical Nunsense!

SAINT JOHN – The SJTC has worked hard this past season to make the best of a bad situation. The COVID 19 pandemic has forced the company to re-think the way it entertains audiences. The past year has been an exercise in resilience and growth for the company including the decision to replace the large-scale musical production of Mary Poppins with a streamlined performance of the hit musical Nunsense.

The May production will be directed by local theatre veteran Bob Doherty and will feature a small but mighty cast, including Dayna Van Doleweerd as Mother Superior, Jen Downey as Sister Mary Amnesia, Jo MacDonald as Sister Mary Hubert, Andrea Paddock as Sister Mary Leo, Ellen Kelly as Sister Robert Anne and Ian McGill as Father Anthony.

"I am excited to be working on Nunsense because I have the good fortune to have a very talented cast, a professional production crew and especially because we have the opportunity with this very funny show to bring laughter to people who, after the year we have had to endure, really need and deserve to have a night out with other people and to laugh!" Bob Doherty, Director

Nunsense will run at Imperial Theatre from May 19-22 in accordance with Provincial Health guidelines. In addition to live performances, streaming options are also available for those not comfortable attending the theatre in person at this time.
